Perspectives attitudes values The Hunter

Opposing perspectives: greenies hold the viewpoint that the environment should be preserved from human intervention. This comes from their context that values environment and the belief that jobs for people shouldn't be at the loss of environment; that the environment is a resource of beauty and enjoyment without impacting it.

The portrayal of this perspective is slightly more sympathetic as they are on the receiving end of aggression from the loggers.

The construction of the greenies is a modernized version of the Romanticist values of truth, beauty, freedom, love – they are alienated from society (hated by the loggers), break 'rules' of society through their disruptive protests and mild drug use, band together to form their own small community.
